Republican State Ticket. For Governor—WILLIAM E. SMITH, of Milwaukee. For Lieutenant Governor—J. M. BINGHAM, of Chippewa. For Secretary of State—HANS B. WARNER, of Pierce. For State Treasurer—RICHARD GUENTHER, of Winnebago. For Attorney General—ALEXANDER WILSON, of Iowa. For Superintendent of Public Instruction—W. C. WHITFORD, of Rock.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS. First District—J. W. WEST, of Union. Second District—WILLIAM JONES, of Clinton.

The Republicans of Iowa and Richland counties have nominated Hon. Joseph B. McGrew for State Senator. The nomination is a good one.

Hon. Amasa Cobb, formerly member of Congress from this State, has been nominated by acclamation for Judge of the Supreme Court of Nebraska.

Jenkins hurried for Jeff Davis in 1863 when the rebels met with a victory. With one or two exceptions, the entire Democratic ticket hurried for the Confederacy in 1862.

Since Joe Rankin was deposed from the Chairmanship of the State Democratic Committee, the party has not been heard from. General Parkinson seems to appreciate the necessity of a "solemn march" this fall.

Senator Blaine is making a regular triumphal march through Ohio. His speeches are more vigorous than ever, and are heard with remarkable interest. Great audiences, such as hardly ever before honored an American orator, assemble wherever he speaks. The call for him is without a parallel. This speaks his immense popularity all over the country.

In 1862, when the rebels had achieved a certain victory, Mr. James G. Jenkins, the present head to the Democratic State ticket, while in a restaurant in Milwaukee, proposed three cheers for Jeff Davis. He had just delivered himself of one cheer, when a Union man named Weatherly, knocked him down. The people will knock the head off the Democratic ticket this fall, but in a more respectful manner than the way Weatherly floored Jenkins during the war.

The State Prison is a paying institution. Under the old management it ran the State in debt from $20,000 to $30,000 each year, but since the State began to lease the convict labor, the prison is more than self-supporting. The Warden, Mr. H. N. Smith, sent to the Governor, on Thursday, this telegram:

WATKIN, Oct. 30. Balance sheet for fiscal year ending Sept. 30: Cash on hand, $11,000.00. All bills paid to date. No appropriation required for ensuing year. H. N. SMITH.

This is the third year, says the State Journal, the State Prison has been in a condition to need no aid from the Legislature.

The Oshkosh Northwestern prints a timely article on the State Superintendent, in which it says: "It is stated that Edward Searling, Democratic candidate for State Superintendent of Schools, will stump the State for the whole ticket. This is something heretofore unheard of. He was a Republican until picked up as the forlorn hope of the Democracy and placed on the Taylor ticket. He was a member of that great 'reform' administration. The Madison Democrat accused him of corruptly selling out to the school book ring which was swindling the people in their school books. The Democrat has not withdrawn the charge, but supports him as a good enough Democrat for the position. We hope Searling will come out and show his colors as a new-born Democrat. Republicans will know where to find him, and will not fool themselves by voting for a mere ring politician in place of the present competent Superintendent, who belongs to no ring but the educational ring."

The other day the Madison Democrat published an editorial in which the editor labored hard to make it appear that Governor Smith should not be re-elected because he has held so many offices, and gave his record in this form:

Years. For the Assembly.....1 1858-9 State Senator.....2 1864-5 State Senator.....2 1866-9 State Treasurer.....4 1871 Member of Assembly and Speaker.....1 1874-7 State Prison Director.....4 1873-9 Governor.....2 1878-76 Normal School Regent.....15

The Milwaukee Sentinel takes up the other side of the question, and gives Mr. Jenkins' record, and is tabulated in this form:

For the Assembly.....Got scooped For County Judge.....Badly left For Circuit Judge.....Couldn't make it For Supreme Court Judge.....People wouldn't have it For Congress.....Smothered early For Mayor.....Merely mentioned For Attorney General.....Died in infancy For Governor, 1873.....Died in infancy

Well, "how does this look?" to the Madison Democrat?

The fears are pretty well grounded that Professor John Wise, and George Burr, Teller of the First National Bank, of St. Louis, have met the sad fate of Donaldson and Grimwood. It will be remembered that the two latter left Chicago in a balloon on the afternoon of July 15th, 1875, and after that were never seen alive. The body of young Grimwood was found on the Michigan shore of the lake several weeks after the disaster, but the remains of

ADRIAN.

A Terrible Catastrophe at the Lenawee County Fair.

ADRIAN, Mich., Oct. 2.—This was the great day of Lenawee County fair. The weather was all that could have been desired, and the city was early crowded with a greater number of visitors than ever assembled here before.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock the grounds were a perfect jam of people, and the grand stand, newly erected, was packed to witness the exercises on the track. A class of gentlemen's driving horses. Double teams, had just sent around the track, and the band, occupying the front and center of the grand stand, had just begun to play while the judges were affixing the premium ribbons, when, with a terrible crash the stand broke down.

It gave way first in the center. Then the front fell outward to the track, and the back fell into the river. At once ensued a scene of indescribable confusion. Buggies were overturned; horses dashed frantically up the track only to meet a crowd of people flocking to the scene of the disaster.

Those who were only slightly injured came crawling out of the mass of ruins showing numerous contusions, and then began the work of dragging from the debris those who were more severely injured.

There were in the neighborhood of 2,000 people on the grand stand, and a large crowd in the space beneath.

As soon as possible the Opera House was opened, and many of the dead and wounded taken there.

Six have been killed outright, and more than 50 wounded.

The excitement in the city immediately succeeding the accident was indescribable. Parents frantically looking for their children; children were looking for their parents; women went into hysterics, and strong men cried on the streets as they heard the terrible news. Many of the injured are among our best citizens.

Professor MacLean, of the university, Professor Wyman, of the Detroit Medical College, and Dr. Hendry, our eminent surgeons were telegraphed for. Superintendent Curtis, of the Lake Shore Road, telegraphed at once proferring aid.

PRAIRIE FIRES.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 2.—Several serious fires have occurred in Minnesota recently, in town and country, aggregating a heavy loss. This is the season when prairie grass is dry, and a spark carelessly dropped starts a conflagration that may sweep over farms or into villages. A furious prairie fire near Markato yesterday passed over two farms, destroying several stacks of grain and compelling men working in the fields to flee for their lives. Another near Worthington, Nobles county, burned for fifteen miles through a settled country, destroying hay stacks and buildings. The farmers fought the fire as long as possible, then fled to the village for protection. A correspondent writing late last night describes the flames as leaping forty feet into the air, and presenting a magnificent scene.

ARRAERS OF PENSIONS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Up to to-day the Pension Office has paid out $20,700,000 on account of arrears of pensions, which has been divided among 38,368 persons, giving on an average to each pensioner about $500. This disbursement has been made at the different agencies, the largest sum being paid at Columbus, which was a few thousand dollars less than $2,000,000. Chicago came next with $1,700,000. St. Louis, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Boston, and Concord each about $1,500,000. Commissioner Bentley estimates that there are between 6,000 and 7,000 people more entitled to arrears under the law, but it is certain that the $25,000,000 already appropriated will be sufficient to cover them all. It is stated for the information of all pensioners who believe themselves entitled to arrears, and who do not receive notice of their claims either by allowance or rejection by November 1 next, they can hasten the settlement by sending a letter to the office giving again the number of their pension certificate and their present postoffice address.

A GRAND AFFAIR.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 2.—Not since 1873 has Indianapolis witnessed an outpouring of people to compare in highest degree with that which thronged its streets to-day, to welcome President Hayes and witness the great industrial parade organized in his honor. Fully thirty-thousand strangers were present, and these, with the townspeople, who gave up all thought of business, filled the thoroughfares to an uncomfortable degree. The decorations were fairly overpowering. Never, perhaps, has Indianapolis looked so beautiful. With good taste, the antiquated arch which is made to do duty on occasions like this, obstructing the view and impeding locomotion was omitted. Nothing interfered with the sweep of the eye up and down the broad streets. The buildings on either side, fluttering with multitudes of flags and hung thick with rich festoons of particular cloth and the fresh evergreen, while overhead, on cross lines from side to side, the waving trolleys of broad banners, the "star spangled" and the impromptu kind, added to the attractiveness of the scene.

DEMOCRATS ALARMED.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 2.—There are significant indications of a party break in the Solid South, in the reports which reach here of the progress of the State election in North Carolina. The North Carolina Gazette, for instance, one of the most prominent of the Bourbon organs, says North Carolina is not at all safe for the Democratic party in the coming canvass, and adds that she is gone unless the very best men are put forward. The Raleigh Observer concurs in this explanation of the situation, and adds:

Should Buxton be nominated for Governor by the Radicals, North Carolina may be wrested from us in spite of all we can do, and with the gubernatorial candidate will go the Electoral vote.

There are at least 40,000 white Republican voters in North Carolina, a greater number than can be found in any other Southern State. There are besides 50,000 colored Republican votes on a free election, and these constitute an undoubtedly legal majority of the State. North Carolina, except for fraud and violence, is a Republican State.

MYSTERIOUS.

LA CROSSE, Oct. 2.—About two weeks ago E. Burnett, who has been for a year employed in the La Crosse Business college as teacher of penmanship, left the city without the knowledge of his employers, with numerous bills unpaid, which led to the belief that he fled to escape his debts. This afternoon the Republican and Leader states that his friends believe that he has committed suicide. Last week he was seen in Milwaukee by friends, who learned of his death at the time, and a young lady here whom he has been attending, has received a letter from him stating that he intended to take passage in a steamer from Chicago to Milwaukee and jump into the lake. He said he brooded over an old trouble till it made him mad, and caused the "act"; also, that he had written his father in Elmhurst, New York, a full explanation of the matter. Telegrams to Milwaukee and Chicago failed to elicit any information as to his whereabouts, and his friends are much concerned. He is 24 years old, of slender proportions, about 5 feet 8 inches in height, dark hair and eyes, slightly bow legged, fuzzy black mustache and side whiskers, dressed fashionably, and wore a soft hat on the side and around his head. The latter would attract attention.

THE MISSING BALLOON.

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—Diligent inquiry by wire through Michigan gives no tidings of Wise and his balloon.

TO THE FRONT.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 2.—Seven companies—250 men—of the Seventh Infantry, Col. Gilbert in command, arrived here to-night, en route West for the Ute campaign.

HORACE GREELEY.

Two New and Good Stories of the Great Journalist.

New York Cor. Indianapolis Journal.

Narrating some of my conversation with Mr. Reid reminds me of an interesting talk I had the other day with Prof. N. B. Denbow, of Chicago, concerning Mr. Reid's great predecessor, Professor Denlow was the chief editorial writer on the Chicago Tribune when I first met him, ten years ago, and wonderful spirited, bright and attractive articles did he contribute. He had been for two years previous financial editorial writer on the New York Tribune, but the offer of a higher salary had transferred his brilliant pen to the Chicago Tribune. In 1873 he left it on account of ill health, which resulted in a most distressing insomnia, and he has since done little newspaper work except to write the series of long, exhaustive and scholarly articles on "Modern Thinkers," now running in the Chicago Times.

"I will remember when I first met Mr. Greeley," said Denlow. "I was just twenty-one and had recently been admitted to the New York bar. I was at the residence of one of my first clients Mr. Partridge, publisher, when Greeley called. When he went into the room with his hands under his coat tails, looking at some pictures. 'Mr. Greeley,' said Partridge, 'this is Dr. Denlow, a young attorney.' Greeley uttered a short grunt of recognition, but did not look around. I, embarrassed, shrunk away to one corner of the room and took a chair. He went on around the room, looking at pictures and whatnot, and in about five minutes when his back was turned on me and I thought he had forgotten me, he suddenly, without looking at me, said: 'Hem! So you're an attorney, are you? I confessed it. 'I have lawyers; they do more mischief than their heads are worth!'

"I suppose they a necessary evil," I suggested, deprecatingly.

"Wholly unnecessary!" he insisted.

"I suppose you will acknowledge," I said, "that they promote good order and remove impediments to good government?"

"Just the contrary!" he said. "The contrary!" he squeaked, in his old falsetto; "they cause disorder, and they are the chief obstacle to good government!"

I thought the man was crazy. "Perhaps you will tell me," I suggested, "how debts would be collected without lawyers?"

"Don't want 'em collected!" don't want 'em collected!" he squeaked; "if A lets B have a property without payment, I don't see why C, D, E and all the rest of the alphabet should be called on as a police to get it back! No debt should be collected by law. It's monstrous! Let a man trust another man at his own risk. Even a gambler pays his debts that he isn't legally obliged to pay, and calls them debts of honor; but men will put their property out of their hands to prevent the legal collection of their grocery bills. Abolish all laws for the collection of debt, and that would abolish most of you lawyers—good riddance!"

"It seemed impossible to talk with a man with such eccentric notions."

And this story of Professor Denlow's reminds me of the method by which Seilster got on the Tribune ten years ago. "I brought out from my uncle, Thad Stevens," said Seilster, "and up to Greeley's cubby-hole. I went. There he sat with his chair tilted forward writing away rapidly, with the paper close on his nose. The boy thrust mustards between his nose and the paper, but he knocked it away without looking up. I waited and waited until I had been there an hour. He never looked up at anybody, and rarely spoke. When Young wanted him to sign anything he brought it and thrust it unceremoniously between his nose and manuscript, and held it there till Greeley signed it. At last I thought I would try that with Stevens' letter to him, which lay on the desk unopened. I opened it, and slowly slid it along on the desk from the right, the signpost uppermost. He took no notice. I cautiously pushed it a little further. Scratch, scratch, scratch, he was oblivious. I timidly advanced the document till its edge overlapped his writing, but when he came across the paper the next time he pushed it away an inch or two with his pen and kept on. Emboldened now, I waited a moment; then, when he reached for ink I deliberately pushed the letter till it covered up his manuscript. He looked down, saw the signature, gently pushed it off again merely saying in a high shrill voice, 'How's Thad?' I told him, and that I had brought him the letter for him to read, but he was again absorbed, and I could not induce him to again permit his voice to fall on the auditory nerve or to glance at his return. After waiting another half hour, I withdrew.

"Young gave me a place and I went to work. Mr. Greeley never came to the office on Saturdays, but remained and chopped at Chappaqua. One Saturday I was surprised to see him come in and go to work. Presently he came out and looked around surprised. 'Where's Young?' he asked. 'Where's Winter?' 'Where's Sam?' (Wilkinson). I saw that the old man was puzzled and had mistaken the day. 'They do not come on Saturday, is this Saturday?' he asked, with a start. I thought it was, answered, a doubtful. The revelation irritated Mr. Greeley, for he thundered out, as nearly as his curious voice could be said to imitate thunder, 'Oh! you think it is, do you? And who the — are you?'"

He omitted the theological term which Mr. Greeley introduced to render his exact meaning plain.

FORTY-NINE YEARS AGO.

Opening of the First Passenger Railroad in the World.

Baltimore American.

Just forty-nine years ago—that is September 15, 1830—the first passenger railroad in England, the Liverpool and Manchester railway, was opened with great ceremony. A year before a prize of £500 had been offered for the best locomotive engine, which had been won by Robert Stephenson's Rocket, upon which was subsequently modeled the old grasshopper engines of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, their appearance being suggestive of their name. Eight locomotive engines had been completed and upon the line, and all had been tested with entire success. To every engine was attached four passenger carriages, each containing twenty persons. The first engine, the Northman, drew the most distinguished guests—the Duke of Wellington, Sir Robert Peel, and other members of the ministry. It had one line of the double track to itself. The other seven locomotives, with their carriages, followed each other on the other line. The procession started from Liverpool at 11 o'clock, with flags, music, fine weather, and great numbers of spectators. The train from Liverpool they stopped to take in water, and in order to afford the Duke of Wellington an opportunity of seeing the procession, the seven locomotives, with their carriages, were ordered to pass slowly by the Northumbrian standing on its track. Several gentlemen alighted while the locomotives were taking in water, and one of them, Mr. Huskisson, member of the Parliament for Liverpool, and an earnest supporter of the railroad cause, catching sight of the Duke of Wellington, between whom and himself there had been some political coolness, ran eagerly across the track to shake him by the hand. At that moment the order was given for the seven engines to move forward. Mr. Huskisson was bewildered. The Rocket, which was the leading engine, struck him while he was still in doubt where to flee. The wheels went over his leg and thigh, and he expired that evening. The accident cast a deep gloom over the day's festivity. The trip was concluded, that the people waiting along the line might not be disappointed, but all rejoicing and gaiety were at an end. The next day the railway was opened for passenger traffic and carried one hundred and forty persons from Liverpool to Manchester in two hours. The original calculations of the construction had been based on probable returns from heavy merchandise traffic—coal, cotton and iron. They had formed no high estimate of emolument from transporting passengers. But the railway was hardly opened before an average of 1,200 persons daily were willing to trust it with their lives. In a few years it was found that the enormous traffic was too heavy for the original rails, and it became necessary to relay the road at considerable expense. But though September 15, 1830, is the greatest day in railroad annals, being that on which the world's first railway was opened complete, our own Maryland railroad preceded the Liverpool and Manchester in utility. The first section of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was broken for its

LASSOOING THE DEVIL.

A Cossack that Wasn't Afraid of Satan.

Some few years ago, toward the end of December, all Moscow was startled by the rumor—the first vague and doubtful, then more and more distinct—of a hideous figure which showed itself nightly just outside of one of the principal "barriers" of the city, terrifying all beholders with the veritable semblance of a demon, tall, fiery eyes, and all.

After a while, however, it was whispered that every one that had been "interviewed" by this disagreeable promenade had ended by finding himself minus his watch, purse, or other valuables—a fact which aroused suspicions that the pretended demon was, after all, only some daring thief, requiring the exorcisms of the police rather than those of the clergy.

Such, at least, was the view taken in the bureau of police itself, when the matter was being discussed one night by some dozen members of the "force," with the addition of such details as popular rumor of their own lively fancy suggested.

Suddenly a young Cossack, recently enrolled, who had sat perfectly silent during the whole conversation, arose, and said quietly but firmly, "It's against orders to let Satan walk about! I'll just go and tackle him!"

So saying the adventurous lad went forth, saddled his horse, and set off in search of the pocket-picking demon, taking with him no weapon save his "arkus"—a short lasso—as formidable in Cossack hands as in those of the American "Gauchito."

It was dark long before he reached the barrier, but a faint gleam of moonlight showed him a ghastly figure, which seemed to rise out of the earth at his approach, and said, in a hollow voice: "Hailo, there! I want you! Come down with me to the kingdom below!"

This sinister summons was barely uttered, when the noose settled around the speaker's neck, and the half-throttled demon, finding himself jerked from his feet and flung violently to the ground.

The Cossack bound him hand and foot, trussed him up behind the saddle, and started back to the town at full gallop utterly regardless of the cries of astonishment that followed his course, and the crowd that gathered at his heels like a snowball.

Meanwhile, the chief of police, having gone to bed earlier than usual, had just fallen asleep, when he was aroused by a violent knocking at his door and a shout of: "Your excellency! Your excellency!"

"What the deuce is the matter?" cried "his excellency," savagely, adding a brief but forcible apostrophe, which need not be quoted.

"Satan, your excellency," answered a voice from without.

"Satan!" echoed the great man, somewhat startled at the announcement of such a visitor, despite the appropriateness of the hour.

"There's a Cossack below, your excellency, who says he's caught Satan, and wants to know what he's to do with him."

A sudden recollection of the barrier demon dashed upon the chief's mind, and he comprehended the whole affair in a moment.

Hurrying on his clothes as quickly as possible, he hastened down stairs, and found at the door the horse with his ghastly burden, while the Cossack, making his salute, said quietly: "I've caught Satan, your excellency. What are your excellency's orders about him?"

Stalling a laugh at his followers coolness, the chief ordered the prisoner's disguise to be taken off, when the features revealed were those of a hotel thief, for whose apprehension a large reward had been offered.

The rascal was promptly packed off to Siberia, while the captor received in full the recompense to which he was so well entitled.

the compliments of all, receiving and giving pleasure, such is the happy fate of a few. To such a person, one may say, has been given the cap of Fortunatus. The old fairy legend is that to the fact that always has society and these favorites who wear the ring of Gyges, and possess the lamp of Aladdin. I think they now call the lamp and the ring "Tact." Human nature, after all, with all its defects, is a great, noble and lovable thing. Perhaps its best side does not come out at a watering place, but the world is not detestable; it has a great side toward the sun. The familiar snob is a disagreeable species his familiarity is insolent, his presumption of acquaintance is abominable. Many snobs get on at a watering place on the pretended association of another watering place. "I have just left Saratoga, and Mrs. Smith sent me to you. We were very intimate with the Smiths, and they begged me to report myself to you." etc. Such is the form. What can be more embarrassing or exasperating to a prominent woman of the world than such an assumption and such a false charm? No woman can afford to be rude to the man whom she must meet every day at the hotel, or cottage or daily drive. The familiar snob who assumes an air of intimacy which he is not, is a bore. The worthy, the thinking, the hardworking, the really good men, retire before such a person; he is the deadly Uvas tree of watering place society.

A REMARKABLE CAREER.

Johnny Clem, "The Drummer Boy of Chickamauga."

From the State Journal.

There are but few people who lived during the late war, and read current events, who are not familiar with the brilliant achievements made and the favorable spirit and soldierly qualities displayed by the boy soldier known as "Little Johnny Clem, the drummer boy of Chickamauga." His acts have been recorded in many histories of the war. Lossing speaks of him as probably the youngest person who ever bore arms in battle, and every incident connected with his army life is so peculiarly interesting to the people in general. That interest will be still greater with our people when it is known that he is now a resident of Wisconsin. Such being the case, we propose to give a brief sketch of his entrance into the army, and of his subsequent life.

John Clem was born in Newark, Ohio, August 13, 1851. He had lost his mother, and in May, 1861, before he was ten years old—when he was so small he might have been placed inside of a regulation drum—offered his services as a drummer to the third Ohio regiment, but was rejected on account of his small size and tender age. The little hero went out on the same train with the regiment, and meeting the 221 Michigan regiment, offered his services to that and was again rejected; but with undaunted spirit and determination, he followed the fortunes of the regiment, until at length he was beating the "long roll" in front of Shiloh, in April, 1862, where his soldierly spirit so won the confidence and admiration of the officers of the regiment, that, in June or July, 1862, he was enlisted at Covington, Kentucky, as a drummer, and served afterwards as a "marker."

At Shiloh, his drum was smashed by a piece of shell, which won for him the appellation of "Johnny Shiloh," as a title of distinction for his fearless manner in the bloody battle. It was at Chickamauga, that field of glory and renown for Gen. Thomas, he received the title of "The Little Drummer Boy of Chickamauga," under which he has passed into history, and his name and title will live forever, in connection with brave acts performed by him, which for coolness and undaunted valor, find no parallel on the pages of ancient or modern warfare in one so young. We give one act, which won for him the highest medal of praise from Rosecrans and Thomas, and every other officer and private in the Army of the Cumberland.

At the battle of Chickamauga, Little Johnny Clem, having just passed his twelfth year, exchanged the "long roll" of the drum for the "brisk fire" of the deadly musket; and on the 23rd day of September, 1865, when the line of battle was about being turned, the "Little Drummer Boy," now acting as a "marker," might have been seen with his trusty little musket, as it afterward proved, which had been shortened for his use, seated upon a caisson, side by side with artillerymen, going to the front to form the line and face the coming storm of death in connection with other brave boys being formed, he now took his position in the ranks, and with his true and trusty little musket began putting in the periods upon his own account, blazing away like to the ground like a fire-fly in the grass.

At the close of the day, when the army was retreating toward Chattanooga, the brigade to which Little Johnny belonged was ordered to hold its position, but, being afterward surrounded by the rebels, a demand for its surrender was made directly after its charge had been repulsed, when a rebel colonel rode up to our little hero, who could not fall back as rapidly as the rest of the line, and made a special demand of him: "Surrender! you d—d little Yankee son of a b—t!" Still coming with his sword drawn upon little Johnny, who had now brought his musket to an "order arms," and in doing which, slipped his hand down the barrel and cocked it while at "order," when our little hero unsprung a shot from the chamber, and the rebel colonel had just received, suddenly swung up his musket to the position of "charge bayonet" and fired, when our little David brought down the proud Goliath, who fell from his saddle, his lips stiffened with the repulsive epithet he had just flung upon a mere boy, and he lay dead upon the ground.

Simultaneously with the performance of this brilliant deed, the regiment to which Little Johnny belonged was fired into by the surrounding rebels, when he fell, as though he had been shot, and lay there until darkness closed in, when he arose and made his way Chattanooga after the rest of the army.

Now all history may be searched in vain for an instance of such thoughtful, courage and self-reliance as this, which alone has given this child soldier an immortality of fame as one of the most heroic characters of the war. A reference to this most daring act in the papers of the day was the first intimation his family had received of his whereabouts during his two years and upwards of absence.

Upon one occasion, when asked, "Why he laid aside his drum and took up the musket?" he replied, "Because I did not like to stand and be shot at without shooting back." And during the battle of Chickamauga, he said to some one of his comrades that he "did not intend to be captured by any one man," and he kept his promise.

For his heroic conduct, the little drummer boy was made Sergeant by Lieutenants, and attached to the Headquarters of the Army of the Cumberland; and he was promoted to Chief Drums, and presented him with a silver medal, inscribed: "Sergeant Johnny Clem, Twenty-second Michigan Volunteer Infantry, from N. M. C.," which he worthily wears, as a price of his brave conduct, upon his left breast in connection with his Grand Army medal.

In a few days after Little Johnny's arrival at Chattanooga, our tiny drummer was captured, with other, whilst detailed to aid in bringing up the supply train from Bridgeport, Ala., and held in captivity for sixty-three days, during which time he was kept on the move, until he was at length paroled down near Tallahassee, Fla., and sent to Camp Chase for exchange, which was not completed until he was captured by his gallant little prize, the rebels despoiled him of the companionship of his little, bullet-riddled cap, which he endeavored in vain to retain as a reminder of the future of the perils through which he had passed, taking along from him his jacket and shoes.

General Thomas in command of the Army of the Cumberland, who received him with the warmest enthusiasm, and made him an Orderly Sergeant and attached him to the staff.

In addition to the battles of Shiloh and Chickamauga, he was at Perryville, Stone River (sometimes called Murfreesboro'), Resaca, Kennesaw, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta, Nashville, and others, where the Army of the Cumberland covered itself with much glory.

Besides the three battles that passed through his little cap at Chickamauga, he was struck once with a fragment of a shell upon his hip and once by a ball. Upon the latter occasion, he was in the act of delivering a dispatch from General Thomas to General Logan, at Atlanta, when a ball struck his hip, and he was wounded in the top of his head, killing him and wounding his horses rider in the right ear. He is held in the highest estimation by all the officers and men of the Army of the Cumberland, and General Thomas was his fast friend and correspondent up to the time of his death.

After the war closed, Johnny Clem went to school and graduated at the Newark high school. In 1871, General Grant, who had kept watch of the movements of the little drummer boy, appointed him a second lieutenant in the army, and he was promoted to be first lieutenant in 1874. He graduated at the artillery school at Fortress Monroe in 1875. His services in the army, with the exception of the time he was at the artillery school, have been mainly in the wilds of Texas and on the lower Rio Grande border.

We have been thus careful in giving, at the present time, this history—first, because it will revive pleasant recollections, and second, because, as before remarked, the little hero is now doing excellent work in Wisconsin.

BRIEFLETS.

—More rain wouldn't hurt.

—The benefit concert which was announced for to-night, is declared off.

—The trees are to be pitied. They have to go bare-limbed during the cold weather.

—O. F. Nowlan has been given the contract for building K. Valentine's new house.

—The postoffice is having a wash-up, which will improve the appearance of the windows greatly.

—Rev. T. W. McLean read a paper on "Church Music" at the Episcopal convocation held at Mazomanie this week.

—A travelling man, whose brain has been whirled by too much drink, is being cared for at the jail, until he gets past all danger from snakes.

—Mrs. Kate Doggett, President of the Women's Congress which meets at Madison next week, is to speak at the All Souls church Sunday evening next.

—We noticed our old friend Jim Bliss sitting up remarkably straight on his tony dray, his face radiant with smiles. A little inquiry disclosed the cause—"It's a girl."

—Justice Brooks had a case yesterday which brought in a close question as to jurisdiction. The plaintiff lived just outside the county line, and the defendant just inside.

—Mrs. Marbecker, late of Delavan, who spent considerable of last winter as a boarder at the jail, has gone to Iowa, and the places which have known her will, it is hoped, know her no more forever.

—The Janesville Council of Select Templars are to meet next Monday night to nominate officers for the coming term. The Temple meets to-night and as there is important business to be transacted, all are requested to be present.

—The two lodges of Odd Fellows in this city, No. 14 and 90, have leased the upper part of M. C. Smith's new block, and will use it as a lodge hall. They expect to expend $1,000 in furnishing it, making it one of the finest lodge rooms in the West.

—Mr. Monihan, of Johnston, who was so badly kicked and beaten by a young man named Mullen, was able to be in the city yesterday, though not fully recovered from his injuries. Mullen's examination is to be held before Justice Brooks to-morrow.

—Miss Julia Wilson has been re-engaged as organist for the Court Street church for the coming year. Miss Wilson is a thorough musician and presides at the organ in a highly satisfactory manner. The church has done well in securing her services for another year.

—As will be noticed by a card published in another column, the grocery firm of Conant & Cline has dissolved. Mr. Cline continuing the business alone. He is a young man of worth and enterprise, and will doubtless continue his hold on a lively amount of trade. The stock is first class in quality and variety, and will be handled so as to suit the many customers.

—Miss Ann Murray was brought before the Police Court this morning to answer to the charge of aiming a revolver at a whole Murphy family. She promised never to do so again and gave bonds to keep the peace from going to pieces. Marshal Russell gobbled the two revolvers which she had in her house, and will see that she does not have them to tempt her to any such outbreak again.

—Mr. Arthur Conant, though he has retired from the firm of Conant & Cline, will remain in the store with Mr. Cline for twenty days or so by which time he expects to have a new stock of goods on hand, and will enter the grocery business again on his own account. He is "well up" in the business and has a large acquaintance in and about the city, and will doubtless meet with a goodly share of success.

—John Griffiths has brought up from pasture his three year old colt, a full brother to the speedy Janesville. The colt looks finely, is full of promise, and is a noble bit of horse flesh. His sire, Robert Fulton, has lately been purchased of Mr. Van Etta by H. S. Woodruff. He is valuable, and of good blood, which has shown up strong in his colts, among which are Janesville, Langworthy, and others, who have made good records.

—Miss Jennie H. Cook of this city, while in Chicago last week lost her pocketbook. She thought some pickpocket had taken it, and she gave it up as gone forever. On arriving home she found a letter awaiting her from a young lady in Lake Forest, Ill., stating that while riding in a street car in Chicago she picked up a pocketbook containing money and a card bearing Miss Cook's name. She had evidently dropped it there. The pocketbook has been sent to Miss Cook, who now has her faith in humanity strengthened by the assurance that there are honest people left in the world.

Important to all Invalids. Iron in the Blood.

THE PERUVIAN SYRUP, a protected solution of the protoxide of Iron, strikes at the root of disease, by supplying the blood with its vital principle, or life element—Iron. This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhoea, Bile, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Hysteria, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. STOCK OPERATIONS THAT PAY.

The past few weeks have been prolific of immense percentages of profits at the New York Exchange, by the careful use of moderate sums in well manipulated stock transactions, which returned a legitimate gain on capital invested according to correct business principles. Great activity prevails in the market. The safest and most successful method for operating in a regular way is in Financial Union by the Protective System of dealing in stocks, which affords absolute guarantees that cannot possibly be assured otherwise. The vast aggregates on the sales of shares that have recently attained such mighty proportions, have been chiefly promoted by the infusion of this new element, which has produced results surprising to all. The conservative basis of this system is its great safety. To be sure of gaining the large profits that accrue so quickly in stock movements, there must be reasonable protection against sweeping risks. This is why the Protective System excels all. On Monday three gentlemen in New York invested $1,000 on Lake Shore stock by the Financial Union System, and on Thursday closed the operation with a net profit of $5,000 for each investor. Tuesday a bank cashier in Philadelphia put $5,000 in Protective options on Northwestern stock, and on Saturday closed the contract with $12,885.73 profit. Early in the previous week two mechanics in London united their capital and invested $250 on Michigan Central and 10 days afterwards they acknowledged receipt of $1,235.55 profits. The last week in July five farmers in Central New York invested $500 each in Financial Unions on St. Paul stock, and on Thursday, the 14th of August, they closed the deal and divided $18,000 equally between them. A lady in one of the departments in Washington used $50 for two weeks in Protective on Western Union and Lake Shore stocks, and made a clean profit of $379.08. On Saturday a prominent Pennsylvania politician invested $1,500 in Delaware and Western and Michigan Central stocks, and in five days drew out of the market with $7,563.81 profit. A large brewer in St. Louis put $2,500 in Protective on St. Paul and Northwestern stocks, and fifteen days afterward closed with a gain of $14,058.37. These are examples of what has been accomplished in Financial Union by the Protective System of operating in stocks when good advice has been followed. With the present activity the prospects for gain in the near future are more favorable, as the operations are equally as good for catching the profits as for losing them or down as they occur. Amounts from $45 to $25,000 or more can be invested with proportionate success by the Financial Union System on regular sales, that leave the control of funds in the hands of investors, with a definite knowledge at all times of just what stocks their money is on, so that they can escape at a glance what their profits are at any hour of the day by referring to market quotations. All operations are assured of straightforward treatment by the Financial Union System, and full and complete information furnished by Messrs. FRANKLIN DUBRELL & CO., Bankers and Brokers, No. 19 Broad Street, New York City.
